

D 5605

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL POLICE.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL POLICE
POLICE REGISTRY.

REPORT

S.2, Special Branch

M. D. 5605

Date

Date January 6, 1934.

Subject (in full) Comment on "Osaka Asahi" report re: arrival of Kaskarafski and other Soviet agents.

Made by D.S.I. Prokofiev Forwarded by A. J. Bennett.

With reference to the attached cutting from the "North China Daily News" of December 29, 1933 containing report of the "Osaka Asahi" on the subject of the alleged arrival in Shanghai under "an American name" of a certain Kaskarafski, Soviet agent who formerly acted as an adviser to Borodin. I have to state that no Soviet agent bearing the above name has ever come to the notice of this office. No information is available as to this individual's arrival in Shanghai recently.

Regarding the reference made by the "Osaka Asahi" to the "increasing number of Russians arriving in Shanghai on passports visaed by an American Consulate" it may be mentioned that Soviet citizens usually arrive in Shanghai either direct from Vladivostock or via Vladivostock-Japan, or via Harbin-Dairen. As far as this office is aware there has not been any noticeable increase in number of Soviet citizens arriving in Shanghai following the restoration of diplomatic relations between America and the U.S.S.R.

A. Prokofiev

D. S. I.

Officer i/c Special Branch.

FILE 11

7857

THE NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1933

ACCORDING to information received in reliable quarters, says the "Osaka Asahi", there has been a marked increase of late in the number of Russians visiting Shanghai. Especially since the restoration of diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and America, has there been an increasing number of Russians visiting Shanghai on passports visaed by an American Consulate. For instance, Mr. Kazkarafski, Borodin's adviser, arrived there under an American name. It is reported that he is working for the Fukien Communist Party, and an organ directing Communists in China. All this is taken as bearing witness to the secret activity of Soviet Russia in extending Communist influence in that district, and much interest is being aroused in many quarters on that account, says the Osaka journal.

S2.
For comment please.

J.H.S.

Dec. 29/33
11/74.

Shanghai Municipal Police.

CENTRAL I. O.

April 22, 1927

REPORT ON Russian playing dual role of Soviet Official and Propagator of Comrade Borodine's Views.

Made by P.C.C. Kedrolivansky Forwarded by J. H. G. L. S. D. I.

Sir,

There is no doubt that Longva, who visited the Soviet Consulate, is identical with the man who was formerly in Hankow. The allegation made in the China Press that he was engaged in making inflammatory speeches to Chinese was based on hearsay, and there is no evidence in support of it at present.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,
V. Kedrolivansky

P. C. S.

WJ
✓
D. C. I.

Shanghai Municipal Police.

Intelligence Office

April 18, 1927.

REPORT ON Russian playing dual role of Soviet Official and Propagator of Comrade Borodine's Views.

Made by P.C.C. Kedrolivansky Forwarded by Y. K. Givens C. D. I.

Sir,

Cards handed to the Municipal Police by visitors to the Soviet Consulate on April 16 included one inscribed in Russian as follows:

"Roman Voitshehovitch Longva, Military Attaché, U.S.S.R.

"Embassy, Peking". This man appears to be identical with the original of the attached photograph, which appeared in the China Press on January 23 over the following description:

"Exploiter of the Mob Mind -- Comrade Lung Kwa Wah ( )

"a Red Russian who is Borodin's man on the spot for inflaming the Chinese mobs to attack Europeans -- Photo by Ariel L.

"Vargas, International Newsreel Correspondent in Far East".

Temp. Police Constable E.V. Yablonsky, to whom the visiting card was handed, describes Longva as a tall man of slim build. He adds that his features were like those of the man in the picture who is described as Comrade Lung Kwa Wah ( ), but he is not sure.

Efforts are now being made to prove that the visitor to the Soviet Consulate was Longva, and to obtain confirmation of the allegation in the China Press.

When Longva visited the Soviet Consulate, he was accompanied by a man who gave a card inscribed "W.T. Shealo, Vice-Consul of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Tientsin".

I am, Sir,

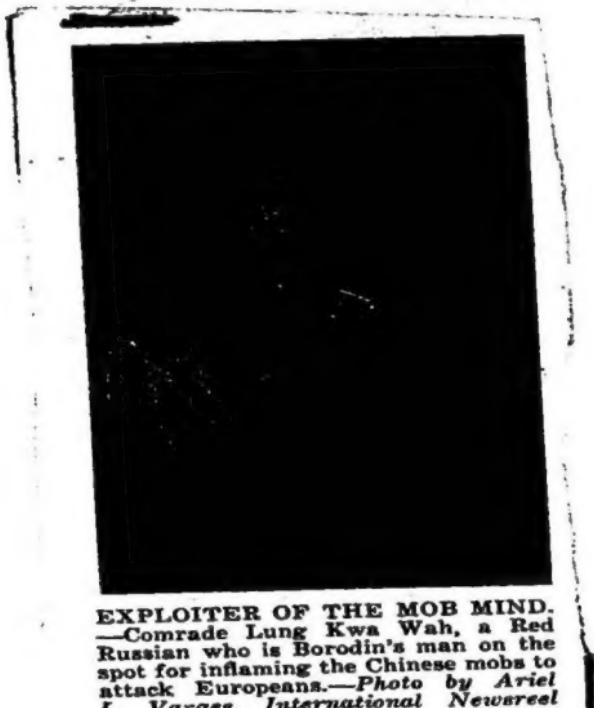

Your obedient servant,

V. Kedrolivansky

P. C. S.

D. C. I.

China Press January 25, 1927.

EXPLOITER OF THE MOB MIND.
—Comrade Lung Kwa Wah, a Red Russian who is Borodin's man on the spot for inflaming the Chinese mobs to attack Europeans.—Photo by Ariel L. Vargas, International Newsreel Correspondent in Far East.

Shanghai Municipal Police.

7553
28/1/27

CENTRAL I. O.

Station.

January 26.

1927.

REPORT ON Soviet Agents.

Made by P. C. C. Kedrolivansky Forwarded by

W. K. Stevens C. D. I.

Sir,

With reference to my report of January 13, 1927, regarding the arrival from Hankow of Soviet agents named Vaskoff and Longva, I beg to attach herewith a photo of Longva, which appeared in the pictorial section of the China Press on January 23, 1927.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant

V. Kedrolivansky

P.C.C.

D. C. I.

R. S. An effort is being made to obtain the negative of the above photograph.
W. K. Stevens
J. K. S.

Memorandum.

C. I. D.

T. O. REG

1558

W.M. ....

14/1/27

FROM THE POLICE FORCE,
MUNICIPAL COUNCIL,
STATION.

To..... D. C. I.

Shanghai, January 13, 1927.

Bir,

Mrs. "Golddraieff", No. 109 Seymour Road, teaches French to Mr. MacDonald. The important information spoken about by her to that gentleman is that which had already been communicated to the Police by Mrs. de Jaurias.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant

J. M. Gouraud
C. D. I.

Copy of attached for act (8b)

Booby snit
Feb. 1927
J.R.

wd

Av. B

Shanghai Municipal Police

C. I. B.
X. O. REG

7558

Date 14/1/27

Intelligence Office

Station.

January 13, 1927

REPORT ON Plans of Anti-Foreign Party in China.

Made by P.C.C. Kedrolivansky

Forwarded by J. G. Stevens C. D. I.

Sir,

With reference to the item in the Morning Report of January 11, 1927, regarding the arrival of Soviet Agents named Vaskoff and Longva from Hankow, a Russian lady named De Jauriaus, whose husband is a French and Commissioner of Posts at Changsha, states that she dined at the same table as the two subversive agents on the trip from Changsha to Shanghai by the s.s. "Tuckwo". Not suspecting that she could speak Russian, the table conversation between them sometimes turned on the plans of the anti-foreign party in China. They said that the Soviet Government would help the Kuomingtang to drive all foreigners out of China. The foreigners, however, would be allowed to return later, but on the clear understanding that they lived in China not as the masters but as the guests of the Chinese people.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

V. Kedrolivansky
P. C. C.

D. C. I.

Spur

REG
No. .... 7558
Date ..... 14/1/27

Extract from Intelligence Report
dated January 11, 1927.

Two Russians named Vaskoff and Longva, who appear to be Soviet agents, arrived here on January 8, by the S.S. "Tuckwo" and are now believed to be living in the Soviet Consulate. Passengers travelling by the same ship state that these Russians were seen off at Hankow by Borodin and several other Soviet citizens employed by the Southern Forces. Both Vaskoff and Longva speak Chinese fluently.